

Justin Nichols

(A1)

Thought
If they are angry/afraid enough, they'll leave me alone.

Feelings
Angry
Tired
And
I could have admitted my feeling and not pushed them away and they could understand I was embarrassed.

Behavior
I said a rugby ~~ball~~ my son got when he tripped while running down the hall was from me pushing him.

B1)

I can get annoyed by coworkers. I understand it is because I feel insecure about my work not being correct. I stop, revisit my work and don't let it affect my coworker.

B2)

I can get frustrated with my pup. I always know she only knows what I teach her, so I figure out what to teach her to do better.

(A2)

Thought
If I'm mean enough, the situation will go away and I can hide my feeling of inadequacy.

Feeling
Frustrated
Embarrassed
Worthless
And
Doing anything else, I may still be able to see my son.

Behavior
When asked, I said "yes, I wanted to see my son fall out of the window."

C) Understanding when thoughts and feelings are leading to harmful behavior, I can reframe the situation before I act.

swamp, I put them in the wrong place