

①a

Situation

I did not get a correctly sized dowel to secure a sliding window.

Thoughts

I can't get anything right.

Behaviors

I responded meanly about wanting to see my son die

Emotions

Incompetent
angry
sad frustrated isolated

I didn't have to say anything mean. I could say that I felt like an idiot and here is what I will do to get it fixed

2. This helps me consider the emotions that tie to my thoughts. ^{Why} I identify those thoughts that tie to ^{cues} ~~questions~~, ~~where~~ I can change to more productive thoughts and prevent harmful behaviors.

Situation

~~Out of anger or frustration~~
I flipped a table during an argument

Thoughts

I am done with this
I can't do any better,
that is just me.

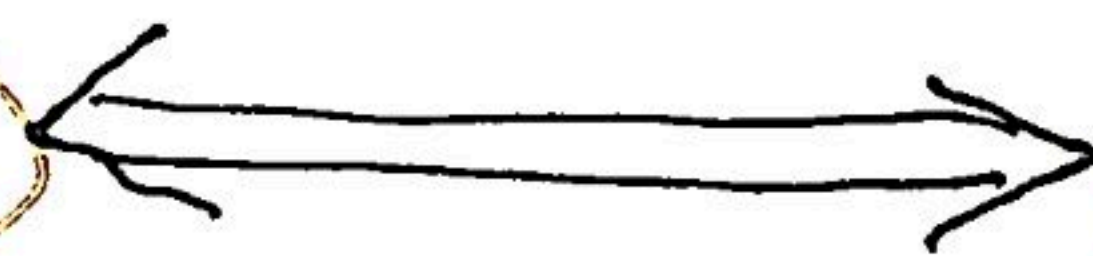

Behaviors

Physical violence -
flipping the table

Emotions

Anger
Frustration
Isolated

If I had not flipped the table,
I could have addressed my ~~to~~ work out insecurities and returned ~~with~~ a healthy solution with my partner

1b. I got a message at work. My first reaction was it was necessary because I am incompetent. I stopped and realized they were trying to be helpful I thanked them and went back to work with the info they provided being useful

2b When I ~~feel~~ feel frustration training my dog and she isn't "getting it" or there are accidents and I start getting worked up - going down the path toward anger or frustration, I immediately stop myself. She never does less than her best and ~~it is my res~~ I can change whatever she needs to work on anything I haven't taught her, yet.
